The estimate of female population as at 30th June 1945 has been made, so far as population over 15 is concerned by having regard to the age distribution of females shown by the results of the civilian register taken on 1st June 1945 after deducting therefrom an estimated age distribution of females in the Northern Territory and adding thereto an estimated age distribution of females in the Services on 1st June 1945.

The population under 15 on 30th June 1945 was estimated from births during the preceding 15 years suitably adjusted for mortality. The estimates for 1950 and subsequent years were made by deducting estimated deaths expected to occur in future from the population as at 30th June 1945.

The effect of migration has been ignored.

While a more accurate estimate will be possible when the results of the 1947 Census are available, the above table may be taken as indicating approximately the relative age distribution of future female population in South Australia at the ages shown unless emigration and immigration affect the position substantially.

For comparative purposes the age distribution of females in South Australia at the 1921 and 1933 censuses, together with the probable age distribution of the 1947 census are quoted hereunder:-

FEMALES - SOUTH AUSTRALIA
